1. Read Isaiah 9:1-7. In what ways do these verses reflect the overall story of the Old Testament and anticipate what is to come in the New Testament?

2. How does the final statement of the passage - “the zeal of the LORD of hosts will do this” - summarize the gospel message?

3. The passage describes Jesus as a child that is born, and a son that is given. What is the significance of these descriptions? Do you find one more difficult to grasp than the other and why are both identities essential?

4. King Jesus is referred to by the name “Wonderful Counselor” in verse 6. What do these two terms tell us about Jesus’ character and role? In what way do you need the Wonderful Counselor today?
